so this is a screen shot of a page showing reports and analysis of diet data The slider will give you the number of days for which we need to show the analysis for. When we click on the buttons, it will enable/disable the respective lines. For the sake of this task, you can assume static data you can do this test in angular2 or react